The Cost of Corruption in Europe – Up to €990 Billion (£781.64 Billion) Lost Annually

FOR RELEASE

Tuesday
March 22, 2016

- RAND Europe's study shows the true extent of the cost of corruption in the EU, with new figures far higher than the previous estimate of €120 billion (£94.74 billion).
- Study estimates that an initial €71.12 billion (£56.16 billion) could be saved through the EU adopting three policy measures regarding corruption.
- Corruption risks during public procurement could cost Europe

Moscow, April 26 (IANS/RIA Novosti) A celestial body 8,600 metres in diameter will pass dangerously close to Earth -- to the Earth's surface in 13 years, an Italian astronomer has said.

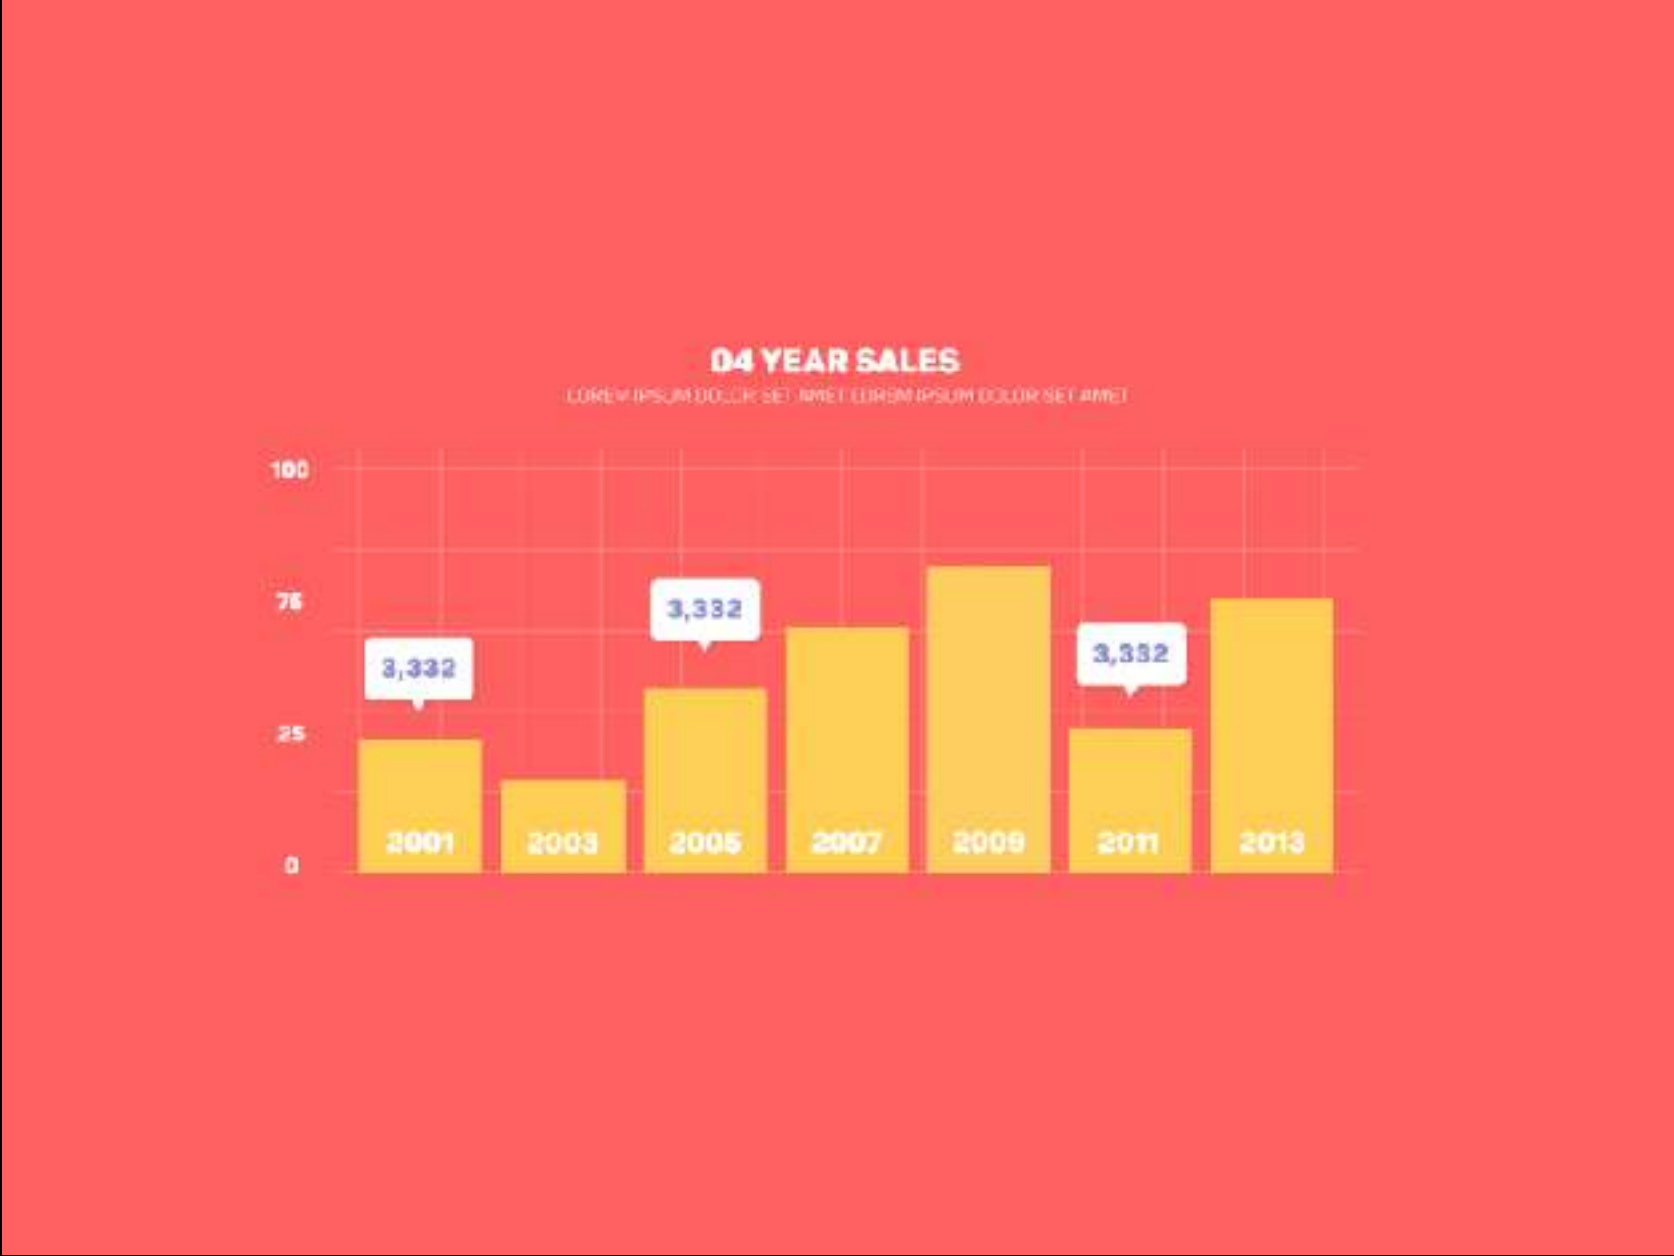

The flyby of the asteroid 2013 GM3 April 14, will bring it within 15,000 km of the Earth's centre, 10,000 km from the planet's surface, said astronomer Luca Manca of the Sormano Astronomical Observatory in Milan.

Today when people go to elections and referendums you are not asked “what do you think?” but instead “what do you feel?”.

That's one of the main dangers of democracy understanding that the critical mass that votes is moved by emotions and these are easily manipulated by people.

“I used to think the top environmental problems were biodiversity loss, ecosystem collapse and climate change.

I thought that with 30 years of good science we could address those problems.

But I was wrong.

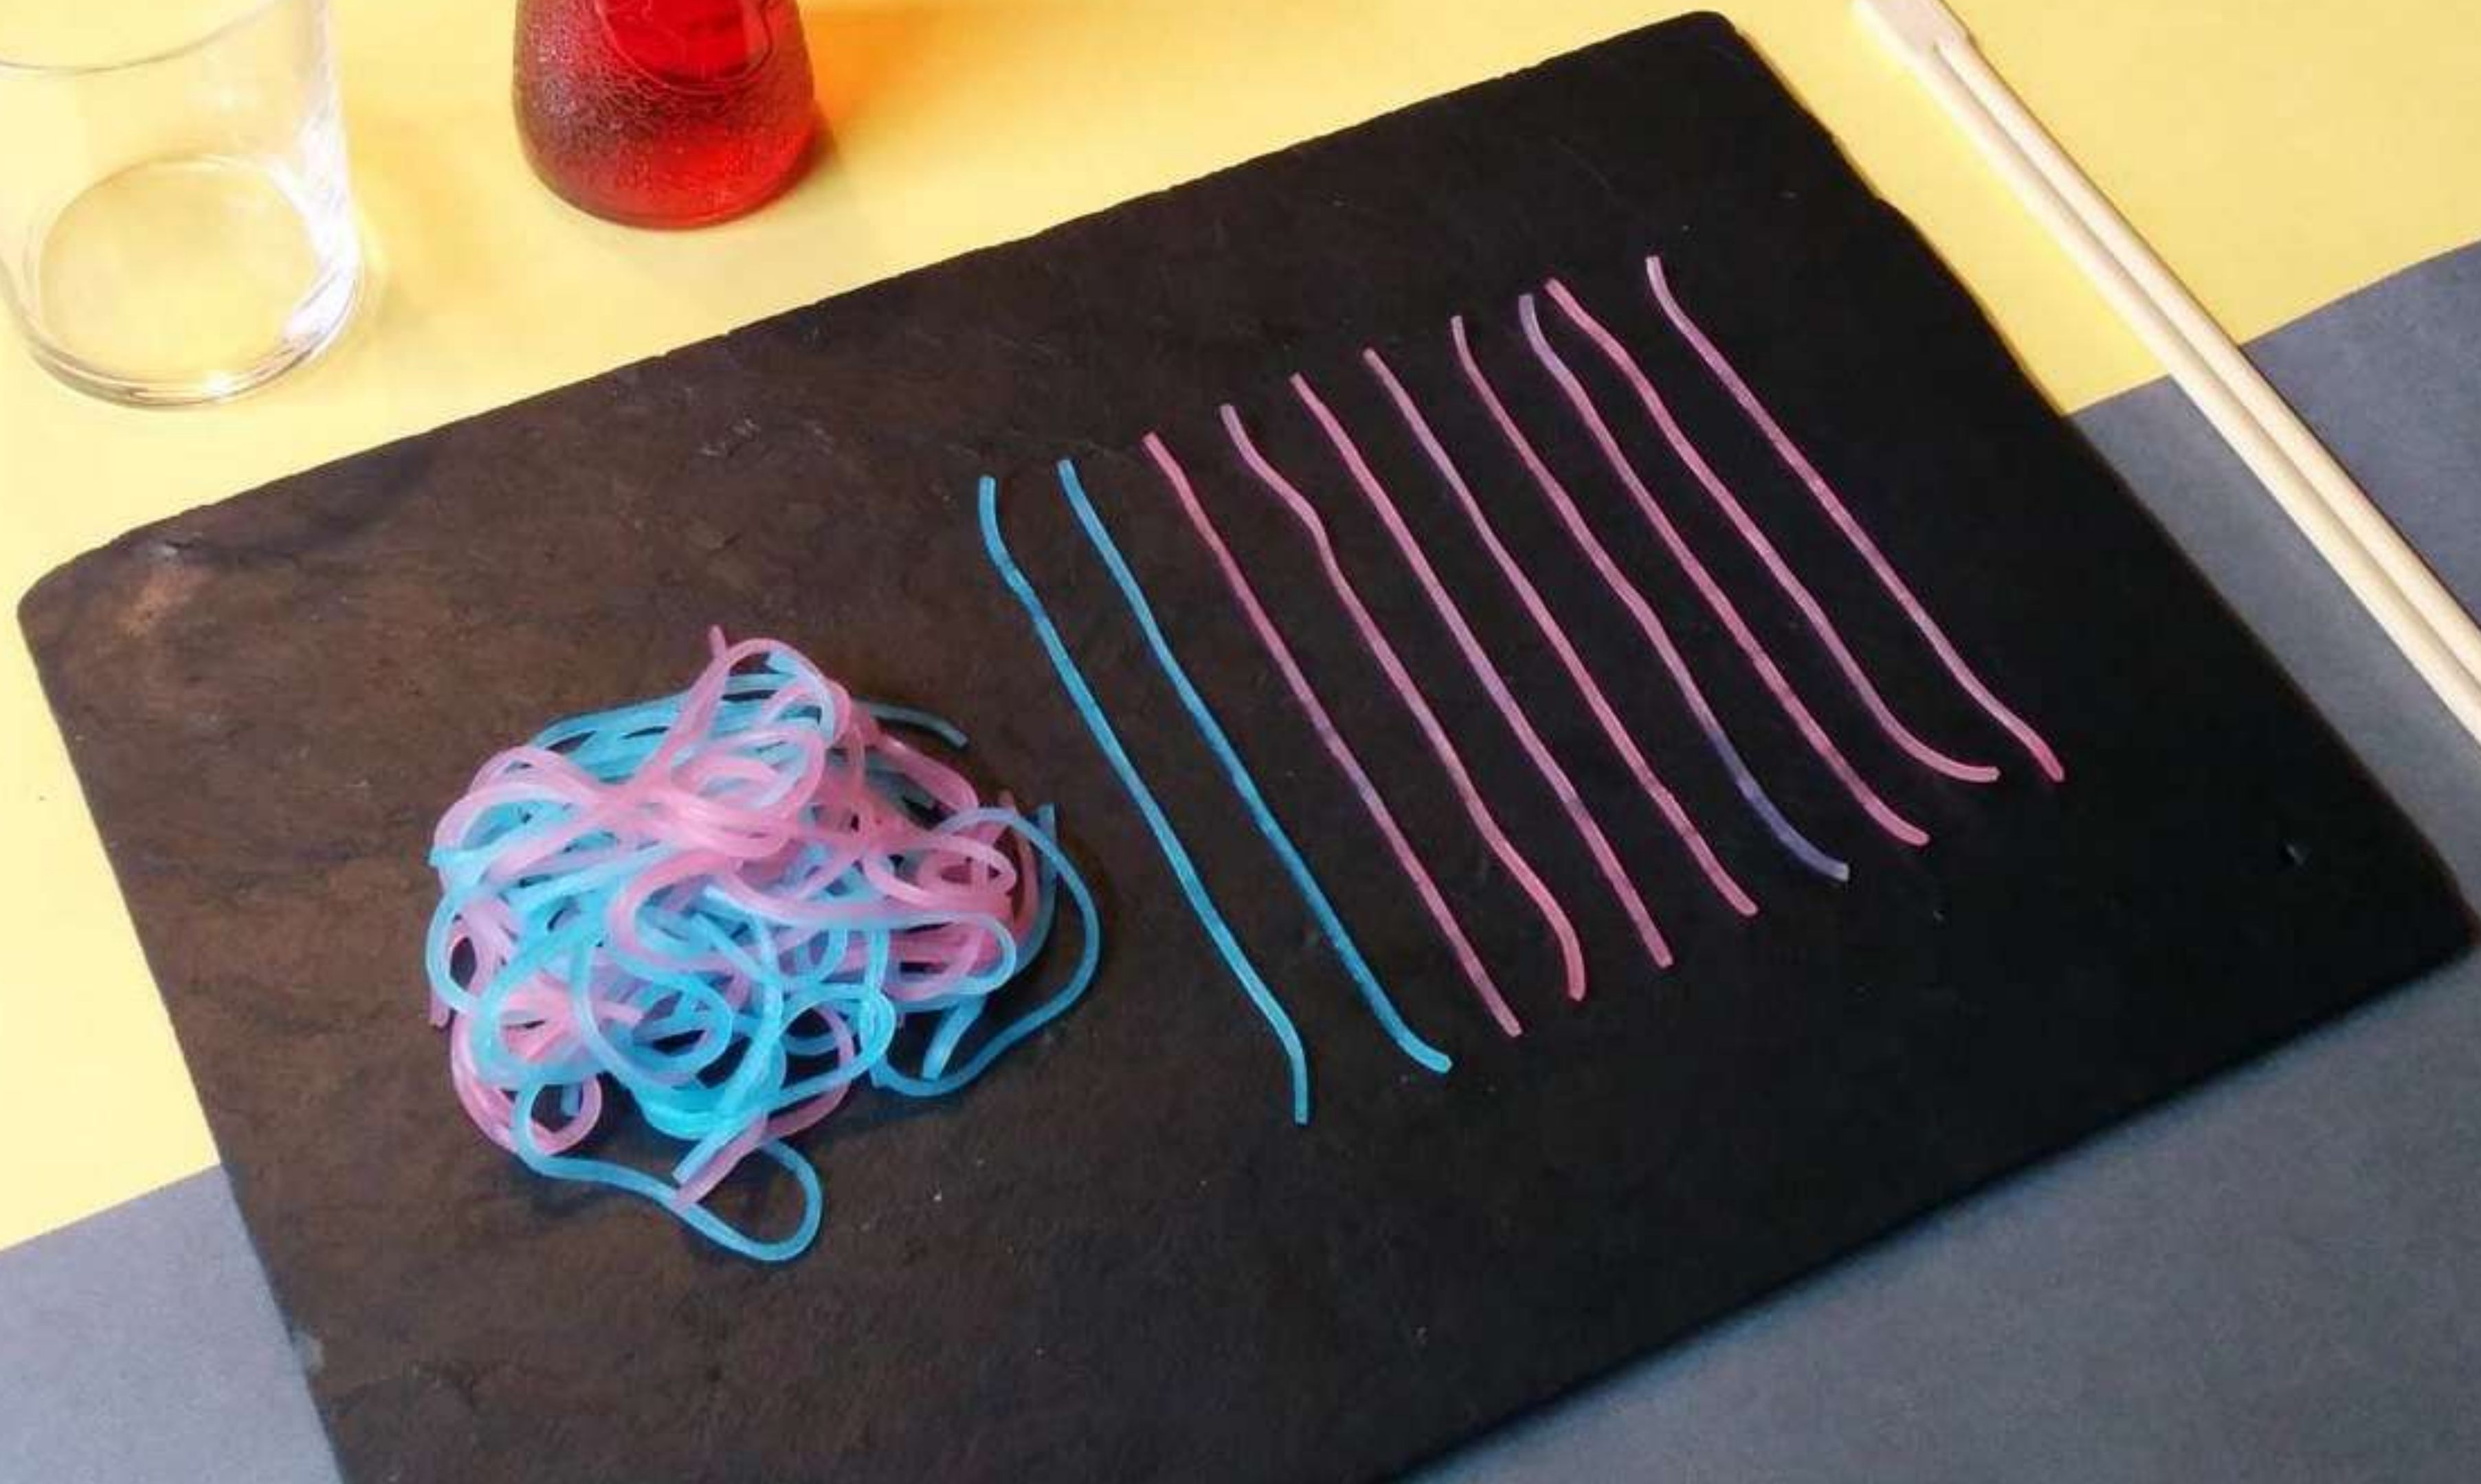

The top environmental problems are selfishness, greed and apathy...

...and to deal with those we need a spiritual and cultural transformation.

- and we scientists don’t know how to do that.”

PRISM, known broadly as the NSA's secret intercept program, is the first effort to use the NSA's patents itself to protect against the disclosure of its intercept secrets and licensing codes, and it is accustomed to supporting partnerships that help it divert data traffic or sidestep lawyers, but there has never been a Google or Facebook before, and the validity of its claims are rather orders of magnitude more tenuous than the ones in Stolen Secrets.

Typically, most of the way the NSA extracts what it knows is by routing the information "col-
